Carr, Givens to speak at Newton-Wellesley event

Actress Robin Givens and former Celtics player and coach M.L. Carr will be among the speakers during the spring Whole Health curriculum at Newton-Wellesley Hospital sponsored by the National Institute of Whole Health.

Carr is now president and CEO of Warm2Kids, a Boston-based organization that is dedicated to informing, inspiring and instructing teens and young adults to make positive life decisions. He will speak on achieving success and leadership from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. during his June 2 talk.

Givens, the ex-wife of embattled boxer Mike Tyson and author of the soon-to-be-published memoir, "Grace Will Lead Me Home," will address domestic violence during her talk on June 16, from 2 to 5 p.m.

Reservations are required for both lectures, which will take place in the Shipley Auditorium at Newton-Wellesley Hospital. Attendance is free. Donations are requested to benefit the Newton Wellesley Hospital Charitable Fund. For more information, visit www.niwh.org.
