National Institute of Whole Health Featured on Oasis Television

Leading Holistic Programming Provider
Broadcasts National Institute of Whole Health Courses

November 1, 2005, Wellesley, MA – The National Institute of Whole Health (www.niwh.org), pioneers of Whole Health Education® and Whole Person Care, today announced that an excerpt of their Sacredness of Relationships course taught by NIWH's Dean of Students Andrew Weiss is now being broadcast free of charge on Oasis Television through December 31, 2005. The world's first 24x7 holistic/personal growth cable/satellite programmer in the world, the course offered through Oasis is available on-demand at www.oasistv.com and on Time Warner Cable Los Angeles. It is also available on MSN's Body-Spirit channel and to Akimbo subscribers.

One of the second year courses in NIWH's Whole Health Education programs, Sacredness of Relationships provides insight about relationships and the concept of sacredness – being "worthy of reverence." The elemental qualities of relationship, defined as intimacy, trust, selflessness and cooperation are discussed. In addition, the roles of friend, spouse, parent, child, lover, ally, enemy and colleague are described as guideposts and limitations in the experience of relationship.

In Q1, 2006, Oasis will be broadcasting NIWH's Success Through Integrity course taught by school founder and director, Georgianna Donadio, Ph.D., M.S.c. Another of NIWH's second year courses, Success Through Integrity teaches how to incorporate principles of integrity into daily life.

"Oasis shares our commitment to providing holistic-focused health information to consumers therefore, we are pleased to partner with them to provide the public with this valuable knowledge," said Donadio. "While these courses are focused on the spiritual side of health, this is one of only five aspects of health we teach in our programs, which educate consumers and health professionals about how these factors come together to produce illness or wellness."

Founded in 1977, the National Institute of Whole Health provides evidence-based education delivered in a relationship-centered, supportive learning environment. This approach integrates the most current medical research with the wisdom of various spiritual teachings and a natural outlook on healing, all of which are centered on integrity and compassion. Endorsed by numerous national associations, including the American Holistic Nurses Education, and approved for continuing education credits, NIWH's programs provide health and medical professionals with the skills and knowledge to transform their work environment. By providing mindful-presence and respectful listening for patients and co-workers, as well as relationship-centered patient care, patients are invited into the center of their own healing and wellness. The program is ideal for all providers and caregivers desiring to offer more than symptom-oriented care to patients, while facilitating transformation in the work place.
